Variety may be the spice of life... but its odd contrasts that make the best news stories and the most interesting reading.

One of the oddest contrasts we've noticed for some time is an item in the Recruiting News, the army recruiting service paper.

The story says in part: "A case in point is that of a machine gunner at a North-western army post. Five days a week this soldier's skilled fingers curl about the trigger of a chattering Browning machine gun. Sundays the same fingers of the soldier play upon the organ of a church in the adjacent big city. The machine gunner's artistry on the key-board of the throbbing organ and music lovers, according to reports, and the man has been acclaimed a musical genius."

If you can find a man with an odder vocation than that... let us know and he'll get a 'round 'n' 'round.

In this same article, it declares that there are a number of soldiers who have been selling articles and stories to magazines, and there are others who have been painting.

The army life, however, is a great life for any young man who wants to study a trade, but who hasn't the money or education to do so.

But there are any amount of men in the army who just don't give a hang for anything... just waiting to serve their 30 years to be retired on a pension.

Some men will serve their full enlistment period as buck privates... with nothing to worry about. They are clothed and fed. They eat by the numbers, sleep by the numbers, drill by the numbers, and probably they die by the numbers.

There is a certain columnist in a nearby paper who writes a strictly local column for his morning sheet.

The other day he blossomed out with his picture in a half column cut at the top of the page.

In his column he declared that everyone could have their chance now to decorate his picture with beads, goggles and what have you.

He asked for rain and they gave him a cloudburst... according to his report.

We never did approve of pictures.

There is one man in Richmond who is doing more than his share of work for Richmond boys.

And this man is Robert F. Cox... take a bow, Bob.

This isn't said because Bob is a good friend... but because it is his due.

A Richmond man who is aiding Bob and his Boy Scouts is Tom Gray.

Gray is president of the court of review and the court of honor.

Nothing more complimentary about the court of review can be said than that every scout who passes his tests passes them with high honors... or he isn't given his rating.

It is remarkable what the Boy Scout movement is doing for Richmond boys.

For the Boy Scout of today is the citizen of tomorrow.

AID SENT TO HURRICANE VICTIMS

2000

By UNITED PRESS

Dead in the Dominican hurricane today were estimated as high as 2,000. As conservative a source as Douglas Morgan, head of the Santo Domingo branch of the National City bank, placed the figure "at least 1,000."

Injured were estimated by others in cables to the United Press from Santo Domingo at 7,000. Morgan placed the homeless at 30,000 and said no buildings in the city proper escaped damage.

The residential district of Gasque was 50 per cent destroyed. The San Carlos, Baramona and Pajarito districts were practically demolished.

The structures which stood the fury of the hurricane the best were those built in the days of Christopher Columbus.

The wind velocity reached 230 miles an hour at the height of the hurricane.

The hurricane struck the city twice, once in the early afternoon and again later in the day.

Torrential rains and electrical disturbances followed the hurricane. Relief work now is under way. Badly needed supplies are arriving. Bodies of the dead are being buried.

GIRL LETS
TRAIN CUT OFF ARM

SALINAS, Sept. 6.—UP—Under an uncontrollable impulse to wield her right arm in murder, a young girl was in the county hospital tonight, the member deliberately amputated at its socket by the wheels of a freight train.

She is Miss Alta Fickie, 20, pretty daughter of Alfred Fickie, Visalia rancher.

She told a United Press correspondent: "All my life I have had to combat a wild desire to use that arm to kill. Yesterday, it became almost uncontrollable. I was walking by the tracks and heard a freight train coming."

"On an impulse, a way to end my torture occurred to me. I lay beside the track and placed my arm in the path of the train. 'I am very happy now.'"

Hospital attendants said that the girl seemed rational. Because the girl's almost unheeded action brought up the biblical admonition, "If thy right hand offend against thee, cut it off," the correspondent questioned her closely with a view of ascertaining traces of religious fanaticism. They were not present. In a cool, level tone, the girl said: "My first murderous impulse came to me when I was thirteen. My father had scolded me and wounded me deeply. I went to the kitchen and began slicing bread with a large knife. Like an almost unbearable wave of heat, the impulse flooded me. It was all I could do to restrain myself, and I was sick afterward with the effort."

"The impulse came often later. Each time it was more violent. In calmer moments, I went almost mad with shame and fear. 'Yesterday, I determined to end it that way, and an opportunity presented itself. Without a moment's hesitation, I took it. As the train roared by, and I felt the wheels biting into my arm, everything went black. 'I woke up here.'"

According to Warden James B. Holohan, the accident happened when Cervantes attempted to clean the machine while it was in operation, an infraction of strict rules in the jute mill. He was received at the prison July 4 of this year from Los Angeles.

AIRPLANE IN
HILL HUNT
DOWNED

BERKELEY, Sept. 6.—Two aviators, searching for Edmund J. Hodel, Berkeley amnesia victim, today had a narrow escape from death or injuries when their plane was forced down in the Berkeley hills by engine trouble.

George Dixon, pilot, and Patrolman Norman Harstad, were the occupants of the plane.

According to Dixon, the plane developed engine trouble while flying low over the hills in search for the missing Berkeley attorney.

Plane Lands
Dixon skirted tree tops that threatened his and Harstad's lives and finally maneuvered the plane to a safe landing.

After an examination of the motor it was deemed advisable to abandon the hunt and return to the airport.

Berkeley police said today that Emory Bronte, of Dole flight fame, was preparing to assist in the hunt for the missing man, by airplane. It was understood he would follow a brief scouting trip with a more detailed search of the hills tomorrow if Hodel had not been found.

Scouts Aid
A group of nearly 150 Boy Scouts under the direction of Bert Fraser were hunting the hills in a long line today. They started from the point, two miles from Hodel's home where the dogs lost his scent Friday and covered a front of several miles.

Every available man on the Berkeley police force will augment this force tomorrow it was announced. Hodel, partly paralyzed since an injury to his spine two months ago that brought on his present amnesia, has not been heard from since his disappearance from home the first of the week.

FORCED TO

A revolutionary movement to overthrow the government of Argentina today won amid the acclaim of the populace of the capital.

Revolving troops, led from the Camp de Mayo by General Jose Uriburu, marched in triumph thru the principal streets of Buenos Aires to the government house.

Government Surrenders
There a white flag was run up to announce the re-nation of the aged president, Hipolito Irigoyen and his cabinet. Irigoyen had temporarily vacated the presidency last night.

Loyal forces at the government house abandoned their posts and joined the revolution which had started less than ten hours before the troops under General Uriburu marched into the center of the city without serious resistance.

Previously the government had attempted to repulse the revolutionaries, but troops in the capital refused to advance against General Uriburu's men.

Harmon was arrested at Huntington Park, Calif., when a bullet hole was found in his automobile windshield and it was learned he had just returned from a trip into Mexico. Paul Gallion of Coronado, a cousin of Harmon, convinced authorities that the bullet hole resulted from the youth's desire to "show the folks back home" the alleged dangers he encountered in Mexico.

Before releasing him, however, a medical examination of Harmon was ordered to determine if he had an injury as described in a telegram sent to police by Lloyd L. Harmon of Trinidad, Colo. The Coloradoan, who failed to state his interest in the case, requested a description of Harmon.

The New York Giants moved to within one percentage point of the second place St. Louis Cardinals Saturday by taking both ends of a double header from the Boston Braves, 12 to 1 and 7 to 2. BRITISH POLO TEAM LOSES TO U.S.

INTERNATIONAL FIELD, Meadow Brook, N. Y., Sept. 6.—UP—America's polo supremacy was ably upheld today by the new "big four" that defeated the British team in the first game of the international challenge series 10 to 5. There were 40,000 spectators.

Tommy Hitchcock, Earle Hopping, Eric Pedley and Winston Guest, riding like demons and hitting with rare accuracy, dominated the play and left the hard-fighting British side little chance to score.

As so often happens, but seldom in polo, it was a youngster, who barely made the American team, who proved the star of a day of brilliant polo.

Hopping Lauded

"Young" Hopping, as they call the boyish stockbroker whose selection caused the defense committee so many sleepless nights, proved a worthy member of a great team. It was his capable "feeding" which enabled Pedley to score five goals and keep the United States always out in front. In addition Hopping scored three goals himself, twice with brilliant backhanders from difficult angles.

For the British, Captain "Pat" Roark at No. 3 played splendidly, especially in view of the fact that he was pitted against Tommy Hitchcock.

The latter, captain of the American side, did not shine as brightly as Meadow Brook's crowds have come to expect, but in the closing chukkers his superior horsemanship stood out.

Perfect Day

It was a perfect day for polo, and for the attendant spectacle of celebrities and the polo association's expectations of a record crowd were quite fulfilled.

At the start the British, very much the under-dogs, took the aggressive and swept into a lead of 2 to 1 before the whistle ended the first chukker.

"Pat" Roark and Lewis Lacey, another of the great internationalists, scored for England, while Pedley, the first Californian ever to represent this country in an international polo match, whipped one between the posts for America.

The British advantage was not to last long, however, for the second chukker found Earle Hopping rising to the heights and constantly driving the ball into position for Pedley to score. The Californian put the United States out in front with two neatly executed goals, and after that the "big four" never was headed. England could not score in the chukker, the play revolving constantly in the challengers territory.

A double header is scheduled to be played this afternoon on the Albany Park diamond between the fast Pullman Service Station nine and the Colored Elks of Oakland.

The first game will begin at one o'clock.

The Pullman squad is expected to be able to vanquish the visiting lodgement today. The Colored Elks were last week-end swamped by the local Moitoza Fords with a score of 18 to 7.

2 Men Fatally Burned By Steam

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 6.—UP—Trapped in a heating tunnel on the campus of the University of Nebraska when a main, carrying live steam, exploded, two men were perhaps fatally scalded late today and twelve fellow workmen escaped similar fate by a matter of seconds.

ODD FELLOWS PETALUMA TO PLAY

The Odd Fellows of Richmond are fairly certain that the Petaluma diamond athletes will have nothing to crow about tonight when they arrive in the chicken city after their clash with the local lodgement this afternoon.

The Richmond Odd Fellows have been smashing through the opposition of almost every team they have met this year, and it is pretty probable that they will not have great difficulty in battering the visiting Petaluma team into submission on the San Pablo lot today.

The three linkers have defeated about every important team in this district, including the Native Sons, Coreys, Firemen, and several sizeable teams from Oakland and sections of Contra Costa county. They are still feeling proud of their victory over Vacaville last Monday at Vacaville. Carl Kamh will chuck for the locals today, with Guadoni receiving.

MOITOZA FORDS WILL MEET CONCORD

The Concord nine will provide this Sunday's baseball competition for the Moitoza Fords.

The game will start at 2:30 o'clock on the Concord lot.

Martin will be in the box for the Fords this afternoon, while Bartoli will do the receiving for the locals.

The Moitoza outfit has been conducting a whirlwind season this year. Their latest triumph was an 18 to 7 walk-away over the Colored Elks of Oakland that occurred last Sunday. The Fords are still undefeated.

Duck Shooters To Practice At Ranch Today

All trap-shoot enthusiasts have been invited to be present at the Upper Skow ranch today, when local duck hunters will unlimber their shotguns for a practice shoot. The bombardment will start at 10 a. m.

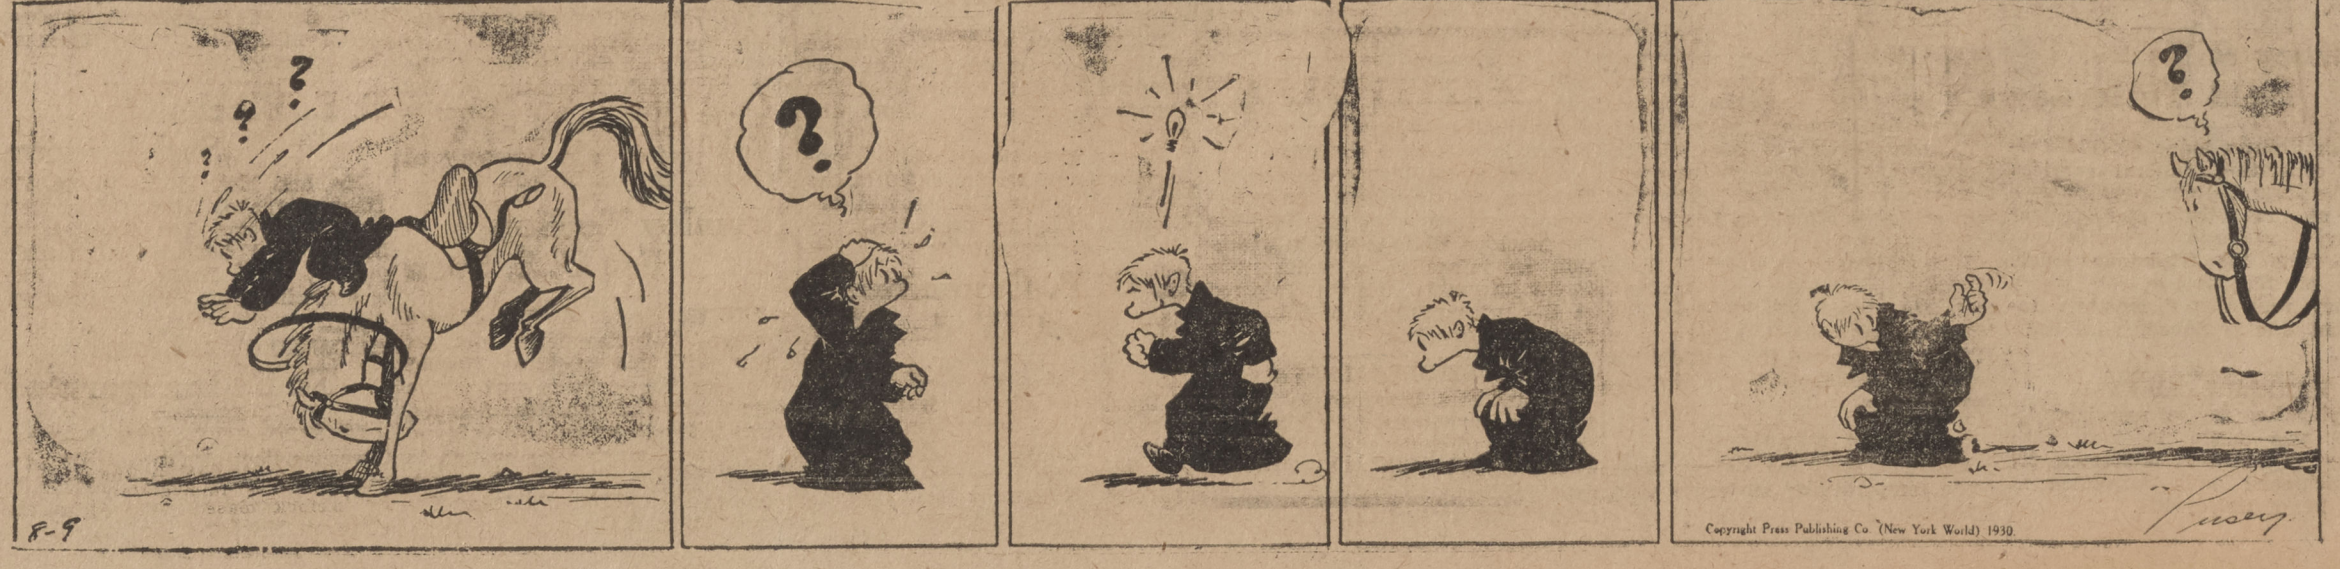

Plans are being made for an amateur shoot to be held soon for the Judge Alstrom trophy, which is presented by Justice of the Peace Arthur A. Alstrom for the best trap shoot score run up before the opening of duck season.

REV. BISH PAID HONOR WITH FETE

The Stege Presbyterian church was the scene of one of the largest and most enjoyable of church affairs when over one hundred and sixty men, women and children gathered there Friday evening in honor of the fourth wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. Meryl Bish.

The gymnasium was given over to the children and their games were directed by Peter Fabricius. Games and contests under the direction of Miss Evelyn B. Johnston, assisted by Mrs. Frank Hunt and Miss Theresa Geritz were enjoyed by the grown-ups in the main auditorium of the church.

The most entertaining feature of the program was the treasure hunt which culminated in the discovery of several large packages which enclosed gifts to Rev. and Mrs. Meryl Bish. A 54-piece china dinner set, a mantel mirror and various other lovely gifts were contained in the packages.

The serving of sandwiches, cake and coffee followed this surprise and closed one of the finest social occasions held for many years.

Oysters Seen For Hawaii

HONOLULU, T. H.—Commercial oyster culture as a practical industry for Hawaii is advocated by Dr. Paul S. Galtsoff, of the bureau of fisheries of the department of commerce, who has been making a preliminary survey of fisheries here.

Galtsoff has viewed samples of pearl oysters taken from Pearl Harbor and Kaneohe, Oahu, and from Pearl and Hermes reef, in the uninhabited archipelago to the northwest.

Galtsoff said that the oysters from Pearl and Hermes reef should be transplanted in the waters of Oahu.

Galtsoff also disclosed that Australian oysters brought here from the Great Barrier Reef in 1928 at the instance of the forestry and agriculture board, are multiplying rapidly and seem to find ideal conditions in the shallow waters where they were planted.

Galtsoff declared that he believed American and Japanese oysters can be successfully grown in Hawaii.

JACK OAKIE IN FILM PLAY AT FOX

The states of Kansas and Missouri may be rated in the statistics books in Washington as producers of grain, but the fact is also raises a bumper crop of movie personalities.

From an acre not more than 30 square miles in diameter along the border of Kansas and Missouri this crop comes to delight film fans the world over.

Birthplace statistics compiled at the Paramount New York studio recently uncovered the interesting fact that Charles "Buddy" Rogers and Jack Oakie, two of the screen's outstanding stellar luminaries, and Ginger Rogers and Stanley Smith, a promising pair of featured players, all hail from this small region.

"Buddy" Rogers claims Olathe, Kansas as his birthplace. Jack Oakie was born in Sedalia, Mo., only a few miles away. Ginger Rogers is a native of Independence Mo. and Stanley Smith first saw the light of day in Kansas City, Mo.

By coincidence, all four of the Kansas-Missouri quartette were working simultaneously in the New York studio recently. Rogers heads the stellar cast of the screen musical comedy "Heads Up!" Stanley Smith and Ginger Rogers played opposite one another in "Queen High" and immediately thereafter Miss Rogers became Jack Oakie's leading lady in the star's latest vehicle "The Sap From Syracuse."

Rogers' family moved to Texas and it was in that state that she won a Charleston contest four years ago of which grew valuable contracts, Broadway bookings and later her first screen role in "Young Man of Manhattan."

Oakie went to New York after a boyhood in Missouri and Oklahoma. He began his quick climb to fame when he was cast in a charity show in New York during the time he was working as a broker's clerk in Wall Street.

"The Sap From Syracuse" is his second starring feature. His first was "The Social Lion," made after his outstanding personal achievements in "Fast Company," "Hit the Deck," "Paramount on Parade" and others.

"The Sap From Syracuse" which opens a two days run at the Fox-California theater starting today, is right down the Oakie alley. The wizard of wise-cracks is seen in the title role as a young outlander who inherits a small fortune and decides to go to Europe. On the boat he is mistaken for another, a brilliant young American engineer.

Rather than disappoint the passengers, Oakie allows them to believe he is the engineer, and the consequences are extremely amusing.

Fox Movietone news and Charlie Chase in "Fast Work" round out the program.

Alstrom Back From Vacation

Justice of the Peace and Mrs. A. A. Alstrom have returned from their vacation in Humboldt county where the judge bagged two deer.

Walter H. Eliassen, past commander of Oakland Post, American Legion, is chairman of the general committee. The first vice-chairman is Emmett J. McKee and the second vice chairman, Mrs. A. J. Mathewat. Lulu R. Webster is secretary and J. W. Carthwaite, of the Oakland Bank, branch of Bank of Italy, is treasurer and has been for the past five years.

Regional representatives from the various communities in the two counties will be selected by the various veteran organizations in those communities shortly.

The committee not only furnishes gifts and entertainment to these under treatment at the Veterans' hospital but provides Christmas cheer to the families of the non-compensated veterans.

Subscriptions are asked only of organizations and individuals who are not solicited. Last year some 400 organizations, veterans, civic, service clubs, welfare and fraternal organizations subscribed to the $3500 fund. The addition of more beds at the hospital during the year will probably result in a larger budget to meet the additional need. However, this will be determined at a meeting of the executive committee in the near future.

While the active committee membership is made up of Alameda and Contra Costa county men and women, donors to the Christmas cheer fund of California and Nevada.

"It is very real Christmas joy that the Livermore Veterans hospital Christmas committee distributes," said Chairman Eliassen in speaking of the committee's work. "The purchasing committee which is headed by Mrs. Eugene K. Sturges finds out the individual gift desired by each veteran or war nurse and this gift is supplied. Very often the gift is for a buddy, or a loved one at home, the veterans giving first thought to others, rather than themselves. It is this wonderful spirit that has inspired this committee to carry on for the past six years and has resulted in such splendid responses. Headquarters are at 1307 Harrison street, Oak'land."

TREASURE SHIP SEARCH IS RENEWED

TORONTO, Ont.—Sept. 6.—UP

—Once again the hope that the remains of an old sailing vessel found in the Great Lakes are those of "Le Griffon," first commercial vessel on the lakes, has been revived.

The Ontario department of public works has granted three Ontario men permission to attempt to salvage a wreck on Mississippi Island, Manitoulin Island, in Lake Huron. The would-be salvagers believe the wreck is that of a two-masted sailing ship which Rene Robert, Sieur de la Salle, noted French explorer of 250 years ago, had built at Cayuga creek near the Niagara river in what now is New York state, in 1679.

The impenetrable French explorer had the ship built with a view toward using it to find a waterway from the Great Lakes to the Mississippi. The ship was of 45 tons burden square-rigged, and armed with five bronze cannon. Its armament and fittings were brought from France.

In order to finance his explorations and repay his creditors, de la Salle sent the ship up the lakes to Washington Island, Green Bay, Wisconsin, where it took on board a cargo of furs, and started back to Niagara. Its captain and five men sailed the ship down through the Straits of Mackinac while the explorer and the remainder of his company set southward by canoe toward the Mississippi.

Driven by seasonal gales, the ship was seen last by the Potawatomi Indians as it swept through the strait. Later, two of de la Salle's men made a complete circuit of Lake Huron in search of the missing vessel. The only sign of it ever seen, until its supposed wreck was discovered a few years ago, was some bits of wreckage which de la Salle found at Michilimackinac island a year after the vessel disappeared.

Roy F. Fleming, of Ottawa; G. H. Agnew of Kilsyth, Ontario and T. J. Bateman, of Shezandah, Ontario, are the men who have received the provincial government's permission to investigate the supposed wreck of the Griffon. Several years ago the provincial authorities refused to allow an expedition from Wyandotte Michigan, to salvage the wreck.

Several times in the last few decades claims have been made that old wrecks found along the shores of Lakes Huron and Michigan were the Griffon, but no evidence to support the claims has been produced.

Peiping is still the educational center of China, and is likely to remain so. The government is working hard to spend much money and effort upon building up a national university in Nanking upon the foundation of the former South-eastern University there, but at the same time has sent much money to the higher schools in Peiping.

Since the break between Nanking and the northern militarists last March, the extraordinary spectacle has been afforded of money being sent from Nanking to support universities in "enemy territory." The northern coalition has not interfered with these remittances, but recently they have been reduced or altogether stopped. The high cost of civil war prevented Nanking from supporting educational institutions any longer.

CHEVROLET SIX WINS ECONOMY PRIZE

In one of the most grueling tests made in recent years, over rough roads, 190 miles from Seattle to Mount Baker, a Chevrolet six coach driven by Miss Beulah La Haise, won the Gilmore Economy run recently, according to officials of Connel and Shumate, local Chevrolet dealers. Mrs. Pinkham and Mrs. Baiden, driving 1930 Chevrolet cars won second and third respectively in their classes. The run was held under the supervision of the American Automobile association.

"There were fourteen cars entered in Class 2, of the Gilmore Economy run, and the run included 19 miles of detour over some of the roughest roads imaginable," declared E. W. Fuhr, Pacific Regional manager of the Chevrolet Motor company in his report of the Chevrolet Victory.

"Miss La Haise, in the Chevrolet, which won in its class, drove the car all the way and averaged 34.47 miles per gallon of gasoline, a remarkable record for this sort of driving."

"This is the second win for Chevrolet in Gilmore Economy runs. The first was held early this year near Los Angeles in which a Chevrolet established a high mark for gasoline and oil economy on a long hilly run through the mountains."

"Chevrolet owners throughout the west have been telling us that the cars are 'gas misers' and these two Gilmore Economy runs prove it better than ever. The runs were made under the auspices of the A. A. A. the officials checking every car and every gallon of gasoline and all oil placed in the cars. An observer rode with each woman driver, and kept track of mileage, gas and oil consumption. The Chevrolet which won second place in the Seattle to Mount Baker run recently averaged 32.62 miles per gallon of gasoline. The third place winner averaged 32.53 miles per gallon, so that all three entrants finished well and the figures were close."

NEW CHRYSLER EIGHT GIVEN TESTS

Before the new Chrysler eights were announced to the public, they had completed more than 200,000 miles of test driving, with the United States as a proving ground, according to Harry Curry, local Chrysler dealer.

For months preceding their introduction, they were tested in zero temperatures of the north; they ran in the hot sands of western deserts. They climbed the Rockies and the Alleghenies. They were "opened-up" on deserted highways and pounded on the rough side-roads to make sure of their performance and roadability. The result is a product as perfect as engineers can design.

Testing motor cars carries its own romantic touch, for it is Chrysler policy to test every new line of cars on the natural proving grounds of America. All identifying emblems and hub caps must be blanked out, although body, chassis and engine are approximately what production units will be. Wherever these mysterious fleets of cars appear, they attract curious throngs who immediately inquire as to their make, number of cylinders and price. Usually, Chrysler engineers courteously reply that they are "Eagle Specials" or some other fantastic name, and quickly the cars disappear.

Most of the responsibility for road testing new Chrysler cars falls on A. B. "Tohy" Couture, chief experimental engineer, who directs the fleet of cars and drivers on such expeditions. Couture tested the first Chrysler in 1924, and his experience dates back 25 years in the industry. He personally drives, rain or shine, more than 50,000 miles every year in such tests, and the story of the findings of Couture and his associates is the story of the pains to which automotive engineers go to make motoring safer, easier and more pleasant.

Rough Tests
"Many years ago, we used to test for speed only, but today we test for the average speed that the average driver makes day after day," said Couture. "We don't spare the cars—we try to tire them, try to make them give up, but at the end of the day, it is always the driver who gives up."

To inform our drivers of the performance of the cars, we carry special thermometers and gauges at the top and bottom of the radiator, at the bottom of the carburetor, at the air intake of the carburetor and in the crankcase. These readings are recorded on dials attached to the steering column. From them, we copy readings on printed charts, so we can tell exactly what each car is doing under any given condition. These charts go back to the engineering laboratories with samples of oil taken from the crankcase for minute analysis.

While Michigan was blanketed with snow last winter, Couture set out for the west coast with a crew of test engineers and cars. It was desirable to make some hot weather tests on western deserts, and also gather some hill climbing data. They set out like ordinary tourists with the exception of special gauges and instruments. Every night, Couture was in touch with engineers at the factory, telling of performance, recommending changes, noting weaknesses and advising where newly designed parts could reach him. The cars were tested and perfected by this method under all road conditions.

Mountain Tests
"We usually make four or five extended trips to the mountains of Pennsylvania for every line of new cars," said Couture. "On these trips, we take an assortment of models and a staff of engineering specialists as well as a crew of expert drivers and mechanics. We are prepared to rebuild cars on the scene of the tests. We take possession of a large garage in one of the mountain cities, and proceed to make a proving ground from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia."

"On Ligonier mountain, a twisting steep pull of four miles with an average nine percent grade, we have a measured course over which we make our tests. We have driven every standard make of automobile over that course. We know what each will do, from a standing start to the top; where gears are shifted, if necessary; maximum speed attained climbing up; maximum speed at the top; and a host of other things. We know what our own cars will do, and in this way we have a basis of comparison. We test our cars again and again on this mountain. We obtain accurate data on brakes, acceleration, deceleration, cooling and many other vital factors of performance. Here again we make changes that are thought necessary."

And that's just a brief summary of the work in the road testing division of Chrysler engineering. The Chrysler eights were driven a distance equal to eight times around the world before they were presented to the public. Only by such experimental work are Chrysler engineers convinced that the cars are ready to enter production as finished products of automobile design.

FRANCE, ITALY GUARD BORDER IN ROW

By STEWART BROWN

United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Sept. 6.—UP—While the statement of Rome and Paris are attempting to heal Franco-Italian naval and colonial sores probed into ulcers at London Naval conference, the military authorities of the two countries are rushing work on extensive secret fortifications along the international border.

Although France and Italy to some extent are naturally protected from sudden attacks by the rugged Alps, there are any valleys which could be used in summer time for quick transfer of troops. These mountainous and dangerous valleys are now bristling with armaments and soldiers' camps.

The weak spot of the Franco-Italian border is along the coast, just behind the Principality of Monaco. The French naval and military authorities have kept up continual land and naval manœuvres in order to familiarize their officers and men with the territory. Black Soudanese soldiers, from Africa, are camped in tents along the Royal plain, while heavy units of mobile guards are stationed at strategic points to prevent any possible trouble among the preponderant Italian population on the French side of the international line.

Like wise the Italians have stationed Fascist militia in all the mountain villages such as Brighella and Scura, each post being equipped with machine guns and light artillery.

According to French reports the Italian Alpine troops have gone through a series of hard, forced marches and surveys in this district during the summer. These difficult expeditions are always followed by wholesale Italian desertions, complicating the problem of French officials from whom the deserters seek protection and refuge.

In addition to the soldiers, it is estimated that more than 100 Italian civilians, fugitives from their country across the border illegally every month. They undergo great hardships to get across as the mountains are nearly impassable and, according to the French, the fugitives are shot at sight by the Black Shirt guardsmen.

Suit Against Star Dismissed

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.—UP—

The $100,000 breach of promise suit filed several months ago against Maurice Costello, veteran stage and screen actor, by Miss Vivienne Sengler, Hollywood scenarist, was dismissed today when she appeared in court and asked that action.

Miss Sengler, whose pen name is Rita Vivian, charged that Costello, father of Dolores Costello, married her, proposed to her in Stockton in 1928 and later refused to marry her. Costello denied ever promising matrimony to Miss Sengler. She would not say whether a settlement had been affected out of court.

EXILED KING MAY REGAIN THRONE

AIX-LES-BAINS, Sept. 6.—UP—Still another exiled monarch will be restored to the throne of his country if the deposed Khedive of Egypt, Abbas Hilmi Second, for years in refuge here, receives an expected call from his former people to go back and restore calm to that recently troubled land.

While the ex-king, in conversation with the United Press, did not wish to discuss the precise part he has played in giving support to the Wafdist, or Nationalist movement, he admits that his luxurious yacht is ready at Cannes to rush him back to Egypt to replace his blood-relative King Fuad if the people wish. Fuad was placed on the throne by the British when Abbas, in declaring for Turkey at the outbreak of the World War, was banished.

Surrounded by every princely luxury in his hotel apartments here—the ex-ruler is a multi-millionaire—the exiled monarch told the United Press:

"The Wafdist movement which has, unfortunately, caused so much turmoil and bloodshed in my beloved country is an unquenchable force towards independence and force of arms will never quench it. 'In Egypt the peasantry do not know either to read or write, but they know that they have the right to freedom and they will fight those who try to withhold it from them.'"

"The Wafdist party is headed by Nahas Pasha and he has the support of the majority of the people. It is my lasting regret that a king of my dynasty, Fuad, should oppose himself to a movement which is veritably that of the whole country. This mistake of Fuad may cost him very dear."

The deposed monarch, who has been taking the cure waters for nose and throat, has lived most of the 15 years of his exile on the sunny shores of the Mediterranean or at one or other of the French hydropathic resorts. He talked willingly and with animated inter-

New Shock Absorbers For Plymouth Car

Effective immediately all models of Plymouth automobiles will be factory equipped with shock absorbers as standard equipment without extra cost, it was announced yesterday by officials of Plymouth Motor corporation.

Chrysler engineers selected the hydraulic type shock-absorbers for the Plymouth car after extensive experimentation on various types now in use. Public acceptance of the hydraulic principle for this equipment is directly in line with the Plymouth policy of immediately incorporating any improvements or refinements made possible by economies of production or increase in sales volume.

Plymouth sales have leaped from ninth place in national registrations in June of 1929 to third place during the same month this year. Complete returns from 33 states for July show Plymouth again in third place in national registrations.

Court Frees Drunken Cat

KINSTON, N. C., Sept. 6.—UP—Four alleged "drunks" including Thomas Cat, arrived at the police station here in a group. Three were men, but Tom was just an alley cat. He was the drunkest of the quartet. Policemen took him from the arms of one of the men and placed him on the station floor. He staggered like an old souze.

The four were "put away." Thomas promptly fell asleep. When he had slept he meowed for water. A pan of ice water was placed before him. He lapped at length and then, according to an astonished turnkey, "buried his face in the pan."

Duly docketed, Tom was not called before the police court. Judge P. D. Croom attended to his case outside. He ordered the feline "released as a first offender" after duly reprimanding him and advising him not repeat the offense. Judge Croom believed the man from whose arms he was taken poured

1931 BUDGET STARTED BY BERENGUER

MADRID, Sept. 6.—UP—While the Berenguer government's program is to hold general elections before the end of 1930, it is taking no chances in the matter and is actively at work drawing up the 1931 budget. It is an open secret that this budget, just like all others since 1924, will be implanted by royal decree.

This was brought to light as the result of an interesting polemic between two Madrid newspapers—El Sol, the leading organ of the Left elements, and the aristocratic conservative La Epoca. La Epoca is the organ of the conservative party and it has become the unofficial mouthpiece for the Minister of Finance and the Minister of National Economy. Its editor don Mariano Marfil, is a conservative politician, who among the various government positions he holds is director of the customs bureau. When La Epoca announced that don Manuel Arguelles, the Finance Minister, was working on next year's budget, it was speaking with authority. When El Sol contended that voting of taxes is the first prerogative of free government, and that Berenguer had promised the nation a free government before the year ends, and therefore the governments' actions contradicted its promises, La Epoca coolly came back with the statement that if a parliament were constituted this year it probably would be too interested in politics to seriously discuss the budget.

Furthermore, it went on to warn its readers that the 1931 budget also would show a deficit. This disclosure followed close revelation that the Berenguer government was finding it impossible to adhere strictly to its own budget for 1930.

SHARING

Let others smile when your lips smile, and you
The momentary joys that line your way,
And travel hours of mirth beside you, Dear—
Gleaning the sparkle from a sunny day.

It does not hurt me that the bliss of life
Is theirs to hold with you; I claim instead
The pain that trips your feet and clasps your hand—
Each problem waiting in the years ahead.

Friendship and love are generous in their giving:
Let others revel in the balmy weather—
I battle storms with laughter, when beside you,
And brave each heartache that we share together.

What Shocks the Younger Generation

SUMMER sports may be nearing their end, while those of autumn have not yet begun, but one sport knows no seasons and its devotees never take a vacation. We refer to the perennial and perpetual pastime of scolding the younger generation and the modern age to which it belongs. Here are two typical headlines from newspaper clippings that lie before us:

Professor Sees Degeneracy in This "Age of Jazz"

Assaults Modern Pace, 95-Year-Old New Jersey Man Declares It Kills

The professor explains, portentously, that jazz music, which he evidently doesn't like, "is a reflection of a condition of society which we need a swift to scourge or an Addison to ridicule."

The ninety-five-year-old announces, with a solemn frown at the youngsters, that "this whirling age of the hip flask, hot lips, wild parties and hoop-hoop-a-dee is not conducive to longevity. I was always up with the birds and never stayed up long after dark. Imagine the present generation doing that!"

It is hard to imagine—and yet only the other day statistics were printed which show that Harvard men of today are taller, stronger, in every way better physically than were their grandfathers. Far from deteriorating, because of late hours and other habits of the age of jazz, they have improved—physically, anyhow. Statistics also show that students at the women's colleges are superior in physique to their mothers at the same age. Score one for the younger generation!

With its devotion to sport, with its ideals of physical fitness, it must often be shocked at the self-indulgent slackness of its elders. The semi-invalidism due to overeating, overdrinking, underexercise.

BUT we are near enough emotionally, domestically, even chronologically, to the younger generation to know that it must be shocked by its elders in many ways. Just for a change, suppose we mention one or two more of them. There is the older generation's lack of independence, its weakness—on the woman's side especially—in standing up for its own rights.

Frankly, it seems shocking to a daughter of today that a daughter of yesterday should so often have given up the life she wanted to live in favor of the life her parents wanted her to live. There were many ways in which she could do this. She could send away the lover of her choice, or keep him dangling in one of those interminable old-fashioned engagements, because her parents wanted (not needed) her to stay at home.

For the same reason, she could give up a personal ambition for a career. Such supererogatory self-sacrifice—and the shocked, indignant refusal to make it, by today's generation—is aptly illustrated in that fine new novel, Years of Grace, by Margaret Ayer Barnes. There is, in this book, an old maid, who was a girl in the Gibson Girl era, and who is nicknamed appropriately Sissy. She didn't want to marry, but she did want to buy a farm, live there with a woman friend and breed dogs. She gave it all up, simply because her parents wanted her to live at home, although they did not need her there.

"When had Sissy," her sister-in-law, Jane, reflects pityingly, "ever done what she wanted to? Never since Jane had known her. It was always what life did to single women. What families did to single women."

Jane's daughter, Jenny, of the next generation, must choose between the situation in her exactly opposite way. She goes to the dog-kennels, with the frank statement to her parents: "If you think I'm going to grow old into that kind of a spinster" (And Sissy "you're very much mistaken. We're going to get out from under our families. We don't want to marry until we meet a man we fancy. In the meantime, we want to be independent."

Jane, the mother, thinks, characteristically: "This generation was something else again—it was rude—it was ruthless—it was completely self-confident. But self-confidence was a virtue. Not entirely an attractive virtue, however. More than the purse-strings had tied poor Sissy's hands. Intangible scrooges. The bonds of affection. Some inner grace."

To which the modern girl retorts: "It isn't grace—it's just shocking, disgusting, spinelessness to let older people run your life for you. They have their own lives—let them leave you yours."

A THIRD thing which shocks the younger generation is the emotional dishonesty, masquerading as nobility, which seems to have been as popular a generation ago. The young thing of today is at least honest in her love affairs. In another excellent autumn novel, Jenny, by Margaret Westmouth Jackson, the otherwise intelligent heroine goes around suffering lifelong remorse because she broke her engagement and married her best friend's young man. Yet it was a genuine love match.

To the modern girl it seems like cheating to marry a man without loving him, engagement or no. And while she wouldn't set out to steal her friend's fiancé, if love sent him to her and her to him she wouldn't think that the situation was bettered by the two of them lying to the girl friend. The friend, in modern parlance, would be "out of luck," but even she would want to know the truth before marriage, instead of accepting the fruitless sacrifice of two other lives.

Clean physical fitness, a courageous will, a complete candor—these, if we are not mistaken, are the common ideals of the younger generation. And it is shocking to find them so often lacking in elders—even if it doesn't always say so!

THINK IT OVER

By Alfalfa Smith

WHAT makes hard times? It is a mental condition. It is FEAR.

Is there just as much money in the world today as there was last year at this time?

There is.

How do I know? Because money is very cheap—sometimes 3 per cent.

Is there money in the savings banks? Lots of it. I am informed there is a sum of eighty-five billions in the savings banks in this country today.

How can we get it out of the banks? By spending fearlessly. Spend, spend, spend—you are just as much to blame as you are not. Have you ever read what it says on the everyday quarter? "In God We Trust" is one thing. "There is no God but Allah" is another.

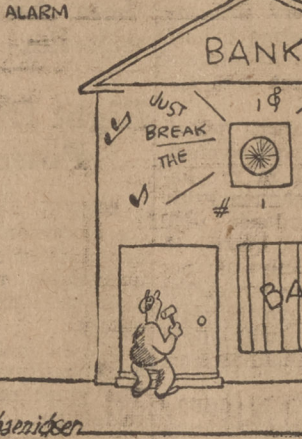

Why not spend freely once and see how it feels?

Children Grow Up

WISH my mother realized I was grown up," said an eighteen-year-old to me the other day. How often have I heard this complaint! And being a mother of an adolescent myself, I know how hard it is for mothers to think of their children as "grown-ups."

Parents often say, "when my child is really grown up I shall think of him that way." These parents should not be too sure of this! One often sees mothers of forty-year-olds still babying their offsprings, still giving them unsolicited advice and criticism!

But no matter how hard it is for us mothers to think of our children as anything else but our babies, we have to school ourselves, as they grow into the teens, to treat them with the same consideration we accord adults. Youngsters of even twelve or thirteen usually feel that they have already reached maturity and heartily dislike being treated as children. When we do not accord them the respect they think their due, they often feel impelled to do all sorts of foolish things—smoking and roughing up their friends—to impress us with their "growing-up."

The parents who realize that their youngsters are a long way from early childhood will have a much easier time when their child reaches adolescence. He will not be called upon to suddenly right about face. For no matter how dictatorial we have been during the early years it is absolutely imperative that we allow our adolescent children to do their own thinking and live their own lives, providing they do nothing to actually harm themselves or others. If we thwart this urge of the young people to express their own individuality we shall force them into either too great a dependence upon us or into asserting their independence too strongly.

We have to try very hard to forget we are parents and think of our teenagers as our children's older "friends." Then we shall be able to laugh (inwardly, of course) at many of their immature views. And perhaps we shall discover that some of their ideas are a great improvement upon our own! So let us strive to treat our children at every stage as individuals, and let us remember that the young ones do grow up!

Brown for Fall

THE brown street frock is a strong contender with black for early fall, especially when the model shows skirt pleats and button trimming. Made of silk crepe and worn with matching accessories, the brown costume strikes a new note after the long reign of black with white, with pink and with turquoise.

New gloves just displayed in the shops are in all the varying shades of brown, tans and beiges, matched to the color of corresponding tones. Strangely as yet there is a decided absence of black gloves.

Formula for Afternoon

THE afternoon gowns follow two distinct patterns—the ensemble and the dress alone by itself.

The ensemble from the late openings has a coat designed to complement the dress and it is done something after this manner. The dress and the lining of the coat are made of the thinner variety, while the coat itself is cut from the thicker sort of material. Sometimes the color for both is the same and sometimes the colors contrast, the brighter one being used for the dress and the coat's lining.

Tunic dresses are ultra smart especially the Russian ones, and two-piece dresses—a coat and skirt—look very well.

It is a fashion that I hope every woman with a pocketbook sturdy enough to bear the strain will adopt at once. I mention expense because since it is so new and so high a fashion, it is necessarily costly.

Fur trimmings are the smartest of all. There will be a little fur cape, called a pelerine, attached to the dress and a part of its design. Then the coat will be untrimmed, slip under the little pelerine and presto, the capelet becomes also a part of the coat. A little fur muff complements the cape and this is not alone something to keep the hands cozy and warm, but it is so constructed that it takes the place of a handbag, having pockets and places for all the paraphernalia that must be carried along.

Ermine is the fur of all furs for this use. And, believe it or not, the dyeing of ermine black as well as brown, beige and gray. Sable, or furs of its type, are also good, or galyack and all of the flatter furs.

Lace trimmings are also most effective and—

All through next fall these dresses of wool with or without their matching coats will be a most popular fashion. Don't despair about the price of the fur capelet for at almost any instant you will find that they will be "cooped down," as the saying goes. And if you must, you can afford to wait until it is cold enough to make a warmer dress a necessity.

They will be worn on the street, in the afternoon, for luncheon, tea and bridge for any purpose, in fact, where a touch of formality is desirable.

Colors, yes—black leads. It is perfect for this sort of thing. Then the brown tones follow, and greens after that—notably a Patou green, a yellowish, darkish green hard to describe and harder to find. Almost any silk house in this country has gotten out a Patou green and all of them are different. Patou himself published a booklet with his own green on the cover and even that did not succeed in emerging from the printers with exactly the right tone to it.

The perfect shoes to be worn with any costume of this character are suede pumps, just plain and simple and well fitted. Or you can wear the suede ones trimmed with patent leather, or water snake as described in an earlier article—or the one or two eyelet oxford varieties that fit snugly into the base of the arch.

The hat would be preferably a tricorn, though a turban or a beret, if they suit your style better, are quite as good.

For the woman who must have a bit of a brim, Alphonse has done a charming little affair pinched up at one side of the forehead and draped at the sides to make it more becoming and guaranteed to give one a romantic look, even if the possibilities for that impression seem entirely remote.

They are made of felt, or of antelope if the costume is of the very dressy variety.

TELLING THE WORLD

By Neal O'Hara

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

(J. Herman Seidlitz today analyzes the international yacht races for our readers. Mr. Seidlitz needs no introduction to the public as a yachting expert and authority. For years he served as purser of the Shamrock II and was promoted to smoking room steward of the Reliance the year it beat Lipton's entry. As a yachting architect he has no peer. The famous Florida boom was designed by him and he was the first man to use the crow's nest for storing eggs. Mr. Seidlitz was also the first man to use washing powder instead of soap for launching a ship. In today's gigantic article he tells the inside story of the international cup races. If you know nothing at all about yacht racing, you won't want to miss this.)

THE BIG CUP RACES

By J. Herman Seidlitz

IN order to get the facts on the yacht races for the reading public I decided to interview J. P. Morgan at the New York Yacht Club on East 44th Street, New York. Entering the spacious edifice, I said to the doorman, "My name's Seidlitz. I want to see J. P."

The doorman said, "Are you a member of the New York Yacht Club?"

I said, "No, I am a guest of the Commodore."

"What Commodore?" asked the doorman.

"Commodore Hotel," I said. "I would like to speak to J. P."

"Are you a yachtsman?" the doorman asked me.

I said, "Am I a yachtsman? Listen, mister, I own an outboard motorboat that's so fast it's already three payments behind. I was with Commodore Lawrence on Lake Erie when he said, 'Don't shoot till you see the whites of their eyes.' I was with Admiral Dewey at Manila when he bottled up the Spanish fleet. In fact, while the Admiral was bottling them up I took away their corkcrews. And you ask me if I am a yachtsman!"

The doorman said, "I am still unconvinced you are a yachtsman."

I said, "I was two years before the mast with Diana and two years below the masthead with Horace Greeley. And am I a follower of the sea? Why, up to a year ago I thought Uncle Tom's Cabin was on the Leviathan."

"If you are a yachtsman," said the doorman, "where are your binoculars?"

"I had them out," I said, "but I've still got my molars and my wisdom teeth."

"And who is it you want to see?" the doorman asked.

I said, "Mr. Morgan. I always call him J. P."

"I am sorry," he said, still keeping his hand on the doorknob, "but Mr. Morgan is not here."

"That's all right," I said. "I'll talk to any one of his partners—Lamont or any of those guys."

"Mr. Lamont or any of those guys aren't here either," he said.

"Well, then, maybe you can tell me about these yacht races," I said.

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

New Yorkers rarely appreciate the superiority of their fish markets until they visit in other parts of the country. In many places it is possible to get fresh fish only once or twice a week, but the New York housewife can plan to have a fish dinner any day with the assurance that daily shipments are bringing her the best of the catch on the Eastern seaboard.

One of the most popular and delicious fish on the market at this season is bluefish, and if you have not served one lately by all means order one from the market today. Their delicate flavor and firm texture are well liked and bluefish combines well with almost any vegetable.

If you wish to prepare a dinner with the least possible effort, merely clean and dry a bluefish and boil it sprinkled with lemon juice, a bit of butter, salt and pepper, in a hot pot. If you are willing to spend a little more time and effort on the preparation of a delicious fish dinner, try the following:

- SUFFLED BLUEFISH
- 1 large bluefish
 - 1 loaf stale bread
 - 1 small onion, chopped
 - 1 pimiento, cut in strips
 - 1 bay leaf
 - Pinch of thyme
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 cup chopped celery
 - Few drops tabasco
 - 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
 - 1/2 cup butter, melted
 - 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Wash the fish inside and out in running water, then dry. To prepare the stuffing, pour a little hot water on the stale bread, squeeze it out and crumble the bread into small bits. Mix with the half cup of melted butter, the salt, celery, parsley, onion, tabasco sauce, bay leaf, thyme and salt. Pack inside the fish, and secure the edges with toothpicks or a skewer. Rub the outside with salt and sprinkle with lemon juice. Place in a large glass baking dish which has been buttered; dot the fish with pieces of butter and bake in a hot oven for about twenty-five minutes. Serve with grilled tomatoes, baked, stuffed potatoes and lima beans or spinach.

RESERVOIR AT SAN PABLO FULL

With water consumption at its peak for the year with an average of 42,380,000 gallons daily, local storage reservoirs of the East Bay Municipal Utility District continued to gain because of the large volume of water in our mountain reservoir, according to the current report of Frank W. Hanna, chief engineer and general manager of the district. The average daily consumption to date for the year is 38,416,000 gallons.

During the last month San Pablo reservoir gained 233,000,000 gallons and upper San Leandro gained more than 200,000,000 gallons, putting San Pablo reservoir to within 32 feet of the spillway, or approximately two feet higher than it has ever been in its history. With water continuing to pour in from the Pardee reservoir there is now a possibility of filling San Pablo reservoir as full as is desired this winter providing there is a normal amount of rainfall, it was said by Hanna.

Upper San Leandro reservoir is 51 feet below the spillway and contains 2,395,000 gallons as against 6,226,600,000 in San Pablo reservoir.

The water surface in Lake Pardee has been reduced nearly ten billion gallons, partly from transmission of water through the Mokelumne pipe line and partly through the passage of water through the power plant and on down the river. Hanna said a large amount of water will always be held in Lake Pardee to provide against the possibility of a limited precipitation in the winter. Pardee reservoir now holds nearly forty-five billion gallons and the total in all of the local reservoirs is nearly nine billion gallons. The latter is sufficient to supply the nine cities of the district for nine months.

The cash receipts at the various business offices of the district for the month of August were $465,272.99. There were 120 applications for new services during this period of which 102 were in Oakland, 45 in Berkeley, 12 in Alameda and 21 in Richmond. During the same period 226 families moved into the district; 139 located in Oakland, 56 in Berkeley, 18 in Alameda and 19 in Richmond.

Largest Tire Here Monday

At Left—Burgess Darrow, Manager of Goodyear Development Dept., and R. S. Wilson, Vice-President in charge of sales, inspect the largest tire in the world at Akron, Ohio; twelve feet high and four feet wide, just before it started its transcontinental tour.

Below—World's largest tire and its especially constructed bus. The value of this tire is $5,000.00. A prominent Aeronautical authority recently prophesied that tires of this size may be necessary for equipment of the aeroplanes of tomorrow.

Tomorrow the largest tire in the world will be on exhibition in Richmond, being brought to our city by A. C. Kastelic, well-known Goodyear dealer, who will have the giant casing at his place of business, at the Civic Center Tire and Battery company at Twenty-third and Nevins avenue from 3:30 o'clock to 4 o'clock.

The intensely interesting tire was built by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company of Akron, Ohio, and is on a tour of several states in this section of the country. It has been in many sections of the United States, and has been exhibited in Canada, causing no end of amazement at the Toronto exposition last fall.

The rubber giant, which is 12 feet high and four feet wide, was built under the combined supervision of the chemical, tire design and research divisions of Goodyear's development department. It takes about three-quarters of an hour to inflate the mammoth casing to a pressure of only three pounds. Its value is placed conservatively at $500.

It might be interesting to note that the valve is the only item of standard size in the entire tire, which is a replica of the Goodyear all-weather tread Super-tread, cord tire, the measurements being in exact ratio to measurements of the regulation size tire.

Goodyear is the largest rubber concern in the world. Early this year it finished the largest airship dock in the world—in fact the largest building without interior supports. It is now constructing for the United States Navy two of the largest airships in the world, being twice the size of the Graf Zeppelin and about three times the size of the Los Angeles. It was quite natural that Goodyear should build the largest tire in the world. It was necessary to construct around this huge casing a special vulcanizer to cure the rubber. Otherwise the giant pneumatic was built under normal operations. Will there ever be occasion for the use of a tire the size of the giant to be seen in our city tomorrow? A prominent manufacturer of airplanes, who he saw the tire on exhibition in his city, stated that the day was coming when huge airplanes would require tires of just such dimensions.

Goodyear originally planned to construct the giant tire even larger but the engineers in charge of the work were restricted in their program by the fact that some of the bridges over which this tire would pass on its tour of America, Canada, Mexico and Cuba have a clearance of only 12 feet.

The tire is mounted as a trailer to a bus of special design and has a load-carrying capacity of approximately 50,000 pounds. Three months' time was required in building it.

Firing Squad Executes Four In Trieste

TRIESTE, Italy, Sept. 6.—UP—Four Slovenes accused of leading terrorist activities along the Italy-Jugo-Slav frontier region, were given religious consolations today and then executed by a firing squad.

One of the men admitted they had plotted to assassinate Premier Mussolini. The executions occurred at Baroviza, a suburb of Trieste, where the four were sentenced to death by a supreme military tribunal that also sentenced other defendants to prison. The commander of the army corps at Trieste, who had the power to decide whether the man's petition for pardon should be transmitted to the king, declined to transmit the plea.

After having been given religious consolation, the doomed men were taken to the execution ground.

The fifty-eighth battalion of Black Shirts, together with Judges of the special tribunal, formed the three sides of a square just at dawn. A firing squad of 56 men was drawn up and the four Slovenes were strapped in chairs on the open side of the square.

HOLY NAME TO HAVE NEW HOME

NEW YORK, —UP— Within 100 feet of the church where the Holy Name society was organized in this country in 1868, a new six-story and basement office building is nearing completion that will house the national headquarters of the religious body.

The rapid growth of the society in the last 50 years necessitated moving national quarters four times. At each move the space was doubled, but within a short time found inadequate. As the organization was growing beyond all expectations, it was finally decided to build the six-story structure to house all national activities of the society. For the present time the national headquarters will occupy four stories and basement. The two remaining floors will serve as the headquarters of the Order of Preachers (Dominican Fathers) in the eastern part of the country. It is expected that with the growth of the society the entire building will be devoted to Holy Name offices.

The new building is being erected on East 65th street, 50 feet east of Lexington avenue. It will be one of five buildings on the plot facing Lexington avenue from 65th to 66th streets. The other four buildings are St. Vincent Ferrer's church, the Dominican Priory, St. Vincent Ferrer's parochial school and St. Vincent Ferrer's Convent.

The first branch of the society to receive its official charter in the United States was that established by the Rev. Stephen Byrne, a Dominican Friar, in 1868. Following establishment of this first branch, the Dominican friars in their missions in various parts of the country urged organization of parish branches. The branch founded at St. Vincent Ferrer's consisted of approximately 100 members throughout the United States numbers in excess of 2,500,000 Catholic men divided into 7,420 branches. There are few towns in this country with more than 10,000 population that has not at least one branch.

The Holy Name society is one of the oldest in the Roman Catholic church. On September 20, 1274, Pope Gregory X issued a decree to John of Vercelli, Master General of the Order of Preachers, to instruct the priests of his order to preach devotion to the Holy Name. Thus was born the Holy Name movement. The Dominican Fathers continued to preach this devotion in all parts of the world to organize groups of men to carry on this work.

League Takes Bold Course On Palestine

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—UP—Criticism by the League of Nations mandates commission of the British government for not preventing last year's Arab-Jewish conflict in Palestine, is an ambitious attempt on the part of the league to establish a super-endorsement over international relations. The move may be in advance of its time, but it seems certain to become a normal reality of world politics in the future.

Reaction of world public opinion to the league's report will be the determining factor in encouraging the practice or in checking it until international feeling has adjusted itself to such important inquiries into governmental activities.

Lord Lugard, the British representative on the mandate's commission, signed the commission's finding, so that no charge of an anti-British nature can be made. It always has been customary, however, for the people of any country to identify their own prestige with the prestige of their government in international affairs. This is not habitual in domestic politics, for the government in power is constantly being criticised by the opposition political party.

The League of Nations is really moving toward the time when a nation will not take offense of its own government is found to have made serious blunders in foreign politics. No government likes to have its own activities subjected to review by an international commission; but another world war, with all its costly consequences may be prevented if non-partisan investigations of governments' international actions can be made in such a way as to distinguish between a government and its own nation.

The knowledge that such an investigation may be made is likely, in itself, to cause governments to be more careful in dealing with international matters. But no such attempt to uncover the inefficiencies or governments' foreign policies can be made with any degree of success unless the people themselves, throughout the world, become interested in the movement, as protecting their own rights to be informed when their governing officials have not served them well.

COLORADO TO GO TO POLLS TUESDAY

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 6.—UP—A spectacular primary election campaign involving charges of excessive expenditures and attacks on propriety of the state's anti-Saloon League's endorsements, drew toward a close in Colorado tonight. The election will be held next Tuesday.

Five aspirants for the two Senatorial nominations, have made the contests the most bitter in recent political history of the state. At no time have they allowed the public interest to lag.

William V. Hodges, treasurer of the Republican National committee during the campaigns of 1924 and 1928, seeks the Republican senatorial nomination in opposition to George H. Shaw, Denver attorney with a large personal following.

They entered the contest months ago when Senator Lawrence C. Phipps, wealthiest man in the senate, decided not to seek re-election after 12 years service.

Phipps threw the support of his organization behind Hodges, but Shaw drew the aid of Senator C. W. Waterman, Clarence C. Hamlin, Republican National committee-man, and John R. Coen state chairman.

In Democratic ranks, Edward P. Costigan, former Republican, who was read out of the Republican party when he received appointment by President Wilson to the Federal Trade Commission is contesting for the senatorial nomination with Morrison Shafroth, son of Colorado's former U. S. Senator, and James Marsh, former city attorney of Denver.

At the instigation of Democrats, a senatorial investigation of expenditures of all the senatorial aspirants has been scheduled for Sept. 25 which comes after the voting. Democrats have charged disbursement to political workers have out-done all previous high-water marks in this respect, and have indicated they expect to make this one of the leading issues in the November general election.

The anti-Saloon league issue also will come in for scrutiny by the investigating committee headed by Senator Nye. The league endorsed all senatorial candidates with the exception of Shaw, whom it branded as "unsatisfactory."

Instantly the charge was made that Rev. A. J. Finch, superintendent of the league, was engaged in selling oil stock to candidates as a side line.

Rev. Finch admitted sale of $100 worth of stock in his oil concern to Hodges, but insisted it was a legitimate business deal, made before Hodges became a candidate.

RELIEF SENT TO STORM VICTIMS

Captain Gustave Prieto. They had supplies with them and were installed in the improvised hospital.

Weather Unsettled
Under the direction of President Trujillo, martial law was enforced by the military. While detachments guarded private property and public buildings, other detachments set up soup kitchens, transported injured to places of succor and assisted in the burning of bodies of the dead.

It was estimated that 2,000 persons lost their lives in the hurricane while the injured may exceed 7,000. Many thousands are homeless.

Bodies Burned
It proved impossible to bury those who were killed. Funeral pyres were built and their bodies were cremated. Several hundred bodies were disposed of last night. More were burned today.

The property damage will run over $10,000,000 and may pass $15,000,000. Hardly a house in the city escaped damage. Those which stood the fury of the hurricane the best were the oldest buildings erected in the days of Christopher Columbus.

Ships Sent
Three relief ships arrived today from San Juan, Porto Rico giving to the sister republic of the island the position of first to come to the aid of the distressed region. Difficulty was experienced in landing the cargoes.

While the supplies from Porto Rico were arriving, however, the first aid came from the north American mainland in the form of a contribution of $15,000 from the American Red Cross cabed here. The Dominican congress passed a decree suspending all constitutional guarantees. It invested the president with full powers to take all necessary economic measures to relieve the situation and to raise funds on the public credit.

The Bank of Canada reopened today, but the Bank of Nova Scotia remained closed.

Although the current of the river was slackening it remained dangerous for ships to enter or leave the port.

Like Knights of Old

YE OLDE KNIGHTS used to fight to protect the fair fame of the devices emblazoned on their shields. And the knight without escutcheon was looked upon askance. He had no name to protect. He could live fairly or unfairly, as his whims directed.

Modern knights of industry have devices—the advertised trade-marks of their products. They must safeguard the reputation of these trade-marks to keep them worth while.

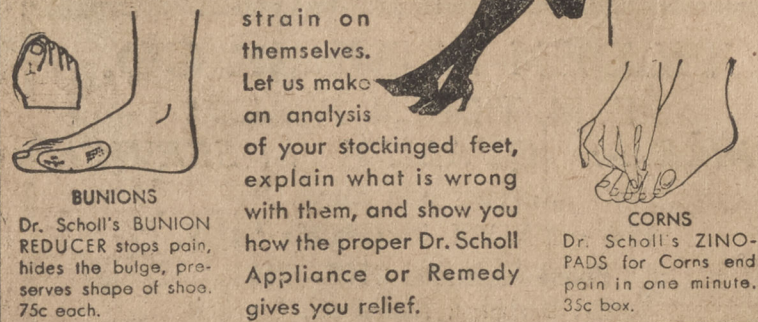

Advertising throws a powerful light on a trade-mark. If it proves worthy, it gains popularity and confidence. If it is shown to be unworthy, it quickly fails.

So you can be sure that every consistently advertised product is good. The advertising test has proved it. The name of its maker stands behind it. The trade-mark is your warranty of satisfaction and true quality.
